Advertising Talks

To the Readers of The Star

By JOHN IRVING ROMER, Editor of Printers' Ink

It was the oversight of a clerk in a certain bank in one of the eastern states that jarred the directors into a sharp realization of how CAREFULLY PEOPLE READ ADVERTISEMENTS, and that converted them to a new, progressive campaign of advertising.

The quarterly report of the bank was laid upon the desk of the clerk who was charged with the duty of sending it to the newspapers. The clerk, under the pressure of regular business, neglected the report, which was buried under a mass of papers.

A week passed without the regular publication of the bank's standing. Rumors spread like wildfire among depositors that the state examiner had not approved of the bank's condition, and the report was consequently being withheld. Frightened inquiries poured into the bank, and these were quickly followed by depositors intent upon withdrawing their savings.

Several thousand dollars were withdrawn before the officials succeeded in convincing the public, through a late publication of the report and a special announcement in the newspapers, that the bank was not only solvent but exceptionally prosperous.

The president was quick to see the moral of this experience. "If," he said at a special meeting of the directors, "our failure to publish so formal a thing as a quarterly statement has such a harmful effect as we have just seen, why, conversely, would not a vigorous series of regular advertisements work for the benefit of this institution?"

The advertisements as they appeared soon afterward in all the local and outlying newspapers must have set business men of that town to thinking. The first ads shed themselves of the frigid "financial" tone of aloofness and dignity, and in a friendly manner explained why the bank was a SAFE place for deposits.

Later the advertisements explained how glad the directors were to welcome people with only small amounts. The manner of starting a savings account was carefully described—the use of the passbook, and all that.

Hot upon the heels of this friendly series came people of small means with only a few dollars to deposit. Some of them told the receiving teller how glad they were to have their money in the First National, and said that they never knew before that the bank wanted such small accounts.

Then appeared in the newspapers advertisements aiming to show business men the full uses of a checking account. Again, a little explaining served to make housewives realize how they might use the bank's facilities to their convenience.

The directors proved, considerably to their own surprise, how vital and humanly interesting bank advertising could be made—AND HOW PROFITABLE TO THE BANK.

HIDES MONEY IN GUN.

Weapon Fired at Dog and $50 Goes Glimmering.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., December 25.—A large black hound at Swerverville was wounded by $50 in bills and some small shot being fired into its hide, but despite the fact that it is worth $50 more or less than it was yesterday, it cannot be found.

The money belonged to John Vincent.

who was afraid to trust it in his pocket or his trunk at his boarding house, and hid it in the barrel of his old shotgun. Had it not been for the dog it would have been there yet, but while Vincent was out Saturday night a big black dog made so much disturbance in the yard that one of the boarders resolved to shoot it. He slipped a shell in Vincent's old shotgun and fired at the dog. How much of the $50 was discharged into the dog's hide is not known, but the bills were evidently torn to pieces by the shot. Vincent is now looking for the dog to endeavor to recover some of the bills.

Accident Makes Twins Alike.

WAUSAU, Wis., December 25.—August and Jacob Hanks of the town of Lincoln, Wood county, are twins, as like as two peas, and seemed by fate to be destined to remain so. For a short time they could be told apart, as Jacob had lost three fingers of his left hand in a food cutter, but now this mark of differentiation has been obliterated by August losing three fingers of his left hand in the same kind of a machine.

IN THE WHEEL OF SOCIETY

MORE HONORS FOR JANUARY BRIDES-TO-BE.

A Christmas Tea at the A. F. Magruder Home—Personal.

Notes.

Col. Francis G. Colton and Miss Colton entertained at luncheon yesterday at their home in Connecticut avenue in honor of Miss Helen Taft and Miss Mary Southernland and her fiancé, Mr. Louis Bacon of Boston, whose marriage will take place January 3.

The others present were Miss Meyer, Miss Alice Meyer, Mrs. Reynolds, Miss Southernland, sister of the bride-elect; Miss Aldrich, Miss Draper, Mr. Robert Taft, Maj. Butt Maj. Blanton, Winslow, Mr. Little, Dr. Cary D. Grayson, United States Navy; Mr. de Bach of the Russian embassy staff and Lieut. Lamar Leahy, United States Navy.

Of the coming marriage of Mrs. Cromwell of this city and Mr. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, a paper of the latter city has this pleasant word of welcome to the bride-elect:

"One of the most important considerations in connection with Mr. Stotesbury's marriage to Mrs. Cromwell is that it will bring to this city a very charming young man who has friends in all parts of the country. Mrs. Cromwell is one of the real leaders of society in Washington and is noted as a hostess."

"With Mrs. Cromwell to manage the Stotesbury establishment at 20th and Walnut streets, society may look for even more delightful entertainments than it has been used to in the lately browned stone pile. Mr. Stotesbury entertains frequently and lavishly, and no expense is spared in carrying out an idea."

"One case within recollection was a dinner given last year in his home, at which the entire dining room was transformed into a woodland bower. The walls of the room and the ceiling were covered with leaves and boughs, and nothing was to be seen of the handsome decorations which have to do with the room in its ordinary capacity. The guests who attended the affair were a select few, who enjoyed it immensely."

"With the arrival of his bride, Mr. Stotesbury will have a hostess for his opera box, in which one of his daughters, Mrs. Hutchinson or Mrs. Mitchell, generally receives the guests. No definite date has been set for the wedding."

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander T. Magruder, following their custom, will entertain at a Christmas tea today.

They will be assisted by Mrs. John Rodgers, Mrs. Horace Westcott, Mrs. W. T. Riddle, Miss Eleanor Fitch, Mrs. Elizabeth Reid Rogers and Miss Isabel Magruder.

Announcement has been made of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Josephine Conrad, daughter of William G. Conrad and Gullbank Twigg, which will take place January 6, at Montana Hall, the handsome estate of Mr. Conrad, near White Post, Clarke county, Va.

The wedding will be a brilliant affair, and many society people will be in attendance.

The bride-to-be is one of two very charming and popular sisters, her other sister being Miss Minnie Conrad, and both have many friends in this city. Their father has made several large fortunes in the mines and on the ranches of Montana.

Mr. Twigg is a native of New York, and he recently purchased the Leeds Manor estate of 4,000 acres near Markham, Fauquier county, on which he expects to plant the largest fruit orchard in the world.

Misses Enid and Erma Shaw, daughters of the former Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Leslie M. Shaw, who are now living at Merion, Pa., will go to Montana Hall January 3 to be the bridesmaids at the wedding.

Mr. Conrad and members of his family reached Montana Hall yesterday and will entertain a number of friends there during the Christmas holidays. He and his daughters have for several years spent much of their time in Washington, particularly during the winter season.

Mr. Justice and Mrs. Thomas H. Anderson have their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Philip Lilly of Connecticut, and their baby daughter with them. They will spend the rest of the winter at the Anderson home.

Mrs. David Graham Adee and Miss Adee will make a short visit to New York during the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. William K. Allen of Amherst, Va., are in the city.

Miss Florence Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips of Philadelphia, is spending the holiday season with her aunt, Mrs. Alexander Long of R street northeast.

The coming of the musical clubs of Yale is always a matter of interest to the younger social set in Washington, and in addition to the dance, a number of luncheons and dinners are being planned in honor of the college boys. The local manager of the concert is A. C. Glover, Jr., who was in the class of 1910 at Yale.

Mrs. William Haywood is giving a dance Thursday night for the young friends of Miss Haywood, to which she has invited only a few of her own personal friends, as her house and ballroom are not large enough to entertain a greater number than already planned for.

Foreign Correspondence of The Star.

BERLIN, December 14, 1911. The wireless telegraphic station at Nauhen, close to Berlin, now possesses a tower which is declared to be the highest in the world, with the exception of the Eiffel Tower, in Paris. The tower was originally 300 feet high, but in order to increase the range of the wireless station, which is already able to communicate direct with New York, it was decided to add another superstructure of 200 feet. This engineering feat has now been accomplished, and in overcast weather the summit of the tower is often lost in the clouds. There have been no attempts to anchor the tower in the tower's construction, and it is anything but an attractive feature of the district, appearing like a huge mast of iron trelliswork springing vertically from the earth's surface toward the sky, from the uppermost extremity of which a net of wirework stretches toward the ground.

It is a technical point of view, however, the Nauhen Tower is probably original. Its sole foundation is a single steel beam, 100 feet long, which rests on the entire weight of over 100 feet of ironwork. Upon a structure of such immense height the power of the wind is naturally very considerable, and owing to the small sectional area of the tower, it was impossible to counteract the wind pressure by wide-spreading foundations. It was therefore decided to allow the tower a certain amount of "give," and to this end its hollowed base rests upon a single ball, upon which the tower, within certain limits, is allowed to swing to the force of the wind.

It is over six hundred feet high and its top is hidden by clouds.

Foreign Correspondence of The Star.

PARIS, December 16, 1911. The Paris police announce the arrest of a number of men who were charged with half a dozen aliases, against whom many swindles are alleged.

He is a good-looking man of twenty-seven years, and was recognized by the French police as having given them some trouble at Nice in March last year, where he was staying in one of the best hotels with a very pretty American, and living in excellent style.

With two accomplices and the American girl he had made the acquaintance of a rich merchant from Hamburg, who was staying at the Hotel Royal. The girl took rooms at the Hotel Majestic, went to tea at the Royal one afternoon, and allowed her friends to introduce the German to her.

Lured Into Baccarat.

Baccarat at the Majestic was the next act and an arrest the third. But the evidence was not plain enough for anything but expulsion, although there was no doubt that the German was being robbed.

The police have since found out that their captive, with the assistance of accomplices, also relieved a Scotchman of $200. The Scotchman lodged a complaint with the police at Montmartre, where this theft took place, and the swindlers bolted.

In 1905 the man was concerned in a robbery at the Hotel Victoria, in Interlaken, and in 1908 he is known to have won $1,500 from an American with a double-headed sovereign.

In August of this year, a member of the National Liberal Club, in London, gambled with him in Baccarat and lost $240 for which he gave a check. A "T" was added in front of the "2," but when the check was presented payment was refused.

The police are in correspondence with Scotland Yard and hope to trace the man's accomplices on that side of the channel.

Automobile Collides With Car.

Dr. McPherson Crichton of 1715 H street northwest figured in a collision on Nichols avenue, Anacostia, yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock, his automobile colliding with a street car. His automobile was slightly damaged.

Commander Senn Slightly Hurt.

Commander Thomas J. Senn, U. S. N., was knocked down by an automobile yesterday afternoon while crossing Connecticut avenue near Dupont Circle and slightly injured. He was able to go home without assistance. The police report that W. F. Holtzman of 2717 Connecticut place owns the automobile that struck the commander.
